About the Programme

The Joint Master in European Cultural Governance (EUCULTURE) is offered by CIFE in Berlin and Nice and the School of Government at Luiss Guido Carli in Rome. Students learn how the intrinsic relationship of Cultural Heritage, Sustainable Development and the Digital Transition can contribute to a constructive transformation of 21st century society.

The Master is taught by renowned researchers and experienced professionals who combine second to none practical expertise and academic credentials. It comprises on-site teaching, case studies, workshops, applied professional skills, a research thesis and a study trip to the cultural hub of Paris.

Engaging with Our Cultural Heritage to Shape Sustainable Policies

- Embark on a cultural Grand Tour of Europe with immersive experiences in culturally significant locations in Rome, Berlin, Nice and Paris;
- Gain a comprehensive understanding of European cultural heritage and its challenges in light of the twin ecological and digital transitions;
- Meet and exchange with key actors in the culture sector, such as artists, museum curators, policy-makers and academics.

Overview of the Academic Year

TERM 1 October to January

The programme starts in Rome, on the campus of Luiss School of Government. Courses will give an introduction to Governance of Cultural Policies, focusing on EU policies and cultural management, specifically in the Mediterranean region.

TERM 2 February to April

At CIFE in Berlin, teaching will concentrate on Central and Eastern European Culture and Sustainable Development. Students will gain insights into the role of culture in local and regional developments. A study trip to the cultural hub of Paris provides the opportunity to interact with key actors in the culture sector and gain insights into the workings of major cultural institutions.

TERM 3 April to July

Courses conclude in Nice, on CIFE's main site. A special focus will be laid on Western European Culture and the Digital Transition. Students will attend courses on Cultural Differences in a Multicultural World, Cultural Diplomacy and Digital Cultural Heritage. Throughout the year, students will participate in policy laboratories and write their Master thesis.
